CANDIDATE CLEVELAND really doesn't see how the Republicans can carry the election unless they buy it-but let him wait until next Tuesday and then he will see. At present the idea of people voting against a man so great and good as himself is really quite too absurd for his serious consideration.

THE spectacle of rich men contributing to the Republican campaign fund is shocking and highly reprehensible in the eyes of modest and virtuous millionaries like WILLIAM C. WHITNEY and Calvin S. Brice. These gentlemen are making a tremendous effort to reform politics, and can prove it by the stubs in their check books.

THE Democratic press of the country has been vociferously howling for several weeks about the enormity of the Republican campaign fund, and now it has just leaked out that the size of Democratic fund with which to purchase votes is $1,000,000, $400,000 of which will be used in the Empire State. But this amount will not carry the state for CLEVELAND, as $1,500,000 failed to do so in 1888.

ACCORDING to the strange logic of of the "startling" discoverer of The Bulletin, the lawyer whose duty and professional engagements call him to the larceny thereby participates in the theft and himself becomes a thief; or if, perchance, he accept employment from the unfortunate creature who stands in dicted for murder, he by so doing imbues his hands in human blood. And as to civil affairs the insinuation is directly made that if the lawyer engages in the line of his profession to prosecute claims or defend the rights of corporations before the courts his undertaking carries with it his conscience and his soul, for time and for eternity, by ever after pandering to the interest of the employer beyond the scope of employ ment and after the engagement has ended. Such may be the standard of professional men and professional integrity, viewed from The Bulletin standpoint, but there is not a man, woman or child in this Judicial District who can be forced to suspect that A. M. J. Coch-RAN is of that low order of material There is not a moral, high-toned citizen who will not rejoice to see the miserable imputation receive a just rebuke at the polls. He who is ever faithful and competent in his undertakings with the individual may well be entrusted to preside over many.
